Cookie Policy

Our website uses cookies. In this document we explain what cookies are, how we use them and how you can manage them.

What are cookies and what do we do with them?

Cookies are small files that are stored on your device when you visit a website. Cookies mean that the website can remember how you've used the site and are widely used to make websites work more efficiently. Cookies don't hold personal information and cannot be used to identify you personally.

We use cookies to make our website work as you'd expect and to tailor what you see on screen. They make the service we provide more useful and reliable, help us improve the speed and security of our site, and allow you to share pages with social networks.

We may provide links on our website to services provided by third parties. Each third-party website operates its own policies. You are advised to read the Cookie Policy and Privacy Policy on the relevant website.

Google Analytics

This gathers information about users, how they found and navigated the site as well as facts about which browsers they have used. The data gathered by this Cookie is anonymous and is used to enhance the usability of the website.

The type of Cookies we use

Essential – Some cookies are essential to you being able to move around the website and use its features. They don't gather any information about you. This type of cookie only lasts for the duration of the time you visit the website. When you leave the website, they are deleted.

Functional – These improve your experience by remembering your search settings. These cookies stay on your computer until you choose to clear them.

Analytic – These are used to analyse how our website works and how we might improve it. The information collected is anonymous.
